

Irena Kováčová, Dobroslav Kováč

The paper deals with the general analysis of one part of the electromagnetic compatibility (EMC) problem - the electromagnetic coupling applied in the field of power electrical systems. Theoretical analysis of above mentioned problem, based on the impact investigation of the electromagnetic wave propagation, is described in part I. Obtained results can be used for predictive stating of EMC quality of individual new electrotechnical products.

Download full text