

Mohamed M. Saied

The paper gives the results of applying an alternative procedure for the economical assessment and optimization of the shunt compensation of radial power distribution feeders with concentrated and/or distributed loading, taking into account the feeder copper losses as well as the installation cost of capacitors.

Download full text